

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

Volume 43
Issue 2 Fall 2013

Article 39

Fall 2013

It

Nikia Chaney

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Chaney, Nikia. "It." The Iowa Review 43.2 (2013): 128-128. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.7410>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

NIKIA CHANEY

IT

Bitten
and again being called to offer a dance
of blessing for a new couple it shows signs of being a more dominant female, a kitten, a purebred mare. It is 24 years old and painting with bright fresh colors in a warm gentle way. It is 23 years old and painting bright fresh colors in a warm gentle way in the backyard all by itself. It is a director, mowing the sands of Middle Eastern dance schools. It is quite alone. It is the president of New Mexico. It is certainly quite alone. It is a society built at an altitude of 400 miles from the sun. It is drying. It is 128 sitting dramatically on the rim of volcanic craters. It is very pretty. It is 14 k gold, dressed in red, watching children play. It is searching for someone. It is heaving out the winter and moving into the house. It is rubbing the backs of heads. It is sitting in the quarter garden and coming up with loads of fun. It is fascinated with shiny bits of pieces. It is another lovely village of words. It is in it now. It is not alone. It is such a friendly little thing.